With many vendors/booths at the show, we have highlighted our favorite Baby/Tween Companies we met at the show including their websites and more information about their company.

Many items at the convention were invented by moms that just wanted to make life a little better for themselves. One of these products are Hot Mama Gowns invented by Deldrea Haysel. A Hot Mama Gown is an extremely useful and fashionable alternative to the hideous hospital gowns that women typically wear during and after they give birth. Instead of the faded pale blue, paper stiff gowns that usually are completely open all the way down a woman's backside, a woman can now feel comfortable and fashionable in a gown made out of soft 100% organic material. The gowns come in a variety of sizes and colors, have easy access to breast feeding without needing to halfway undress yourself and have snaps all the way down the back. A Hot Mama Gown is a perfect baby shower gift because it is unique and there isn't a woman out there that would rather wear a used hospital gown over a Hot Mama Gown if they had the choice.
